

The Dog Training Club of Tampa: Aggressive/Reactive Dogs in Class

Any instructor that deems a dog in their class to be a safety threat to themselves, other dogs, or handlers, may excuse that dog and handler from attending future classes. The instructor will offer the excused handler the option of getting a refund for the remaining classes or making a referral for one-on-one sessions. This information will be documented in the notes section of the Dogbizpro portal and passed on to the club registrar. If one-on-one sessions are scheduled, the handler will get a credit for the remaining classes to be applied to one-on-one sessions. The sessions are not a guarantee that the dog will be appropriate for future group classes and may result in a recommendation for outside professional help.
